

About Intredo

The history of Intredo dates back to April 2014. The core idea of Intredo was based on the observation that many promising companies struggle with their growth despite having good business ideas. We embraced the assumption that each year marketing would become more and more complicated and companies would have difficulties trying to handle it on their own rather than with an experienced partner.

In retrospect, we see that we were right. Each year marketing becomes more dependent on technology and AI play a greater role in driving campaign decisions. This changes make marketing more knowledge demanding.

We are a team of more than 50 senior marketers, data scientists, designers, growth hackers, and technology engineers. We have more than 10 years of experience in agencies and on the client side.

Our focus is not on the quantity of clients. We are a growth agency focused on strategic, long-lasting partnerships. In line with our mission, our role is to help you build something bigger.
